Slide Traps Camp At Canadian Mine

STEWART, B.C. (AP) — The threat of more slides grew today as 120 men — some hurt seriously — huddled in the ruins of a remote glacial valley mining camp waiting for help.

The fate of at least 20 companions remained hidden under the rubble of a giant avalanche that thundered down Thursday on the Granduc Mining Co., almost wiping out the northern British Columbia copper mining camp on the edge of a glacier.

Sketchy reports from the scene indicate the miners were continuing to hunt for the missing men, but were hampered by darkness.

Medical Aid Needed

Vicious weather—high winds, snow and rain—prevented rescuers from getting to the mountain-ringed campsite. Recent warm weather and continued heavy rainfall brought fears of more slides before a way could be found to evacuate the camp.

Radio reports from the camp said 17 injured men were lying on a floor of an office building, some needing additional medical aid.

Some of the injured were pulled from a mass of mud, snow and ice that struck in mid-morning. Others were among 40 men rescued late Thursday from a tunnel being dug into copper reserves under Le Duc glacier, officials reported.

Canadian Lt. Col. Walter H. V. Mathews confirmed today in nearby Prince Rupert, B.C., that 40 were rescued from the tunnel. He said at least 20 men were missing, maybe still trapped in the tunnel or somewhere under tons of debris.

Power Tools Buried

The men were rescued by fellow miners using shovels because their power tools were buried, said Mathews who heads an evacuation center at this Canadian port 150 miles south of the camp.

"We have found no bodies and can confirm no dead," said S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Prince Rupert a number of hours after the slide.

"But there were more than 140 men at the camp. The death toll could be anywhere between zero and 20."

The mine is 30 miles north of Stewart and a few miles east of the border of southeast Alaska. Innis Kelly, the radioman who sent out the first alarm after the slide, radioed late Thursday night, "The rain is very troubling. The men are afraid it will cause more slides."

The avalanche took out the powerhouse, so Kelly got no more in his first message than a distress signal, sent from a radio shack at an air strip near the camp. But he moved shop to the main office building, the only one in the cluster left standing, and used batteries plundered from bulldozers for power to get messages out late in the day.

Snow Stops Doctor

Kelly described a giant bonfire the men kept going, and he praised the doctor and his helpers.

The radioman asked for food and medical supplies. In response, the U.S. Coast Guard sent a patrol boat from Ketchikan up an arm of the sea called Behm Canal to the mouth of the Chicamin River. Aboard were a doctor and the supplies Kelly asked for.

Two doctor brothers, James and A. N. Wilson of Ketchikan, were flown near the scene by helicopter. Pilot Kenny Eichner of Ketchikan managed to get Dr. James Wilson to within a mile of the camp before he was forced by heavy snowfall to land. Dr. A.N. Wilson spent the night in a cabin at the mouth of the river. They hoped to reach the camp early in the day if the weather cleared.

An Alaska ferry, the Taku, was on the way from Ketchikan to Prince Rupert to pick up medical supplies and rescue personnel. Then it was to back-track north to the Chicamin River to serve as a hospital ship.

Mrs. Peterson Choice Of GOP

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Republicans meet today and Saturday to formally elect Mrs. Elly Peterson their chairman and to adopt a 1965 platform.

Mrs. Peterson has been tapped by Gov. George Romney to succeed Arthur Elliott, who announced his retirement last month after criticism mounted about the party's public relations.

Mrs. Peterson will become the first woman state chairman in GOP history.

Republicans are bringing in newly elected Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., for their featured speech at the main convention session Saturday. Murphy is a former song-and-dance man who upset one-time White House press secretary Pierre Salinger in the November election.

Romney will deliver the closing speech.

A 47-member pre-convention resolutions committee has been working on resolutions and platform.

The most interesting could concern a call for fiscal reform.

Marchers Fight In Marion, Ala.

MARION, Ala. (AP) — One Negro was shot twice and at least eight other persons, including three newsmen, were beaten during a clash between Negro demonstrators and police on the first night march of the present voter registration campaign.

The march started quietly Thursday night at the Zion Methodist Church on one corner of the attractive square in the center of this west-central rural Alabama county seat of about 4,000.

About 500 demonstrators left the church and headed for the jail to protest the arrest of one of their leaders, James Orange. Police told them to disperse.

"We stood there a little while and turned around," said Albert Turner, president of the Perry County Civil League. "One of the ministers in the group started praying. By that time state troopers had arrived."

He said the troopers "started pushing the crowd back toward the church, but our people couldn't get in the door because it was jammed. When they tried to go around the church to a side door the troopers beat them."

Phones Dead For 3 Weeks In City Of Richmond, Ind.

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — This city of 44,000, which boasted one of the nation's first dial telephone systems in 1907, has gone three weeks with telephone service ranging from dead silence to makeshift party lines limited to emergency calls.

An insurance agent commented: "It's the first time I've had any peace for years."

Teenagers found they could convey most vital information to one another at school, without gluing themselves to the phone a couple of hours each night.

Not one housewife had to climb out of the tub and inform a telephone salesman she wasn't interested in new siding on the house, or buying more magazines.

Wrecked By Fire

With all that, Richmond's citizens will be glad when the General Telephone Co. restores the normal service that was stopped abruptly Feb. 4 by a $1-million fire in a switching center.

The last normally completed call was to the Fire Department.

New $22,500 Position Goes To Albert Lee

LANSING (AP) — Detroit accountant Albert Lee has only to come to the State Capitol and take his oath of office to become Michigan's first Legislative Auditor.

Democrats in the House and Senate gave him the job Thursday — despite Republican attempts to get some voice in the choice for the rich plum. He will take an eight-year post with an annual salary of $22,500.

The 54-year-old Lee was in bed with the flu. Democrats said—leaving the date of his oath taking uncertain.

The House passed a resolution naming Lee on a 76-5 vote, in which six Republicans joined the Democratic majority. Five Republicans voted no and 26 abstained.

Labor Ranks Split

The Senate beat back a Republican amendment which would have created a five-member committee—including all the losing candidates—to advise the legislature on duties and functions of the new position.

The election carried there with 24 yes votes.

Democrats were able to ignore Republican protests because majorities in both chambers gave them strength to approve the auditor's appointment by themselves.

Competition between Lee and Detroit accountant Richard Austin had caused a behind-the-scenes split in Democratic and labor ranks. But are long-term party workers.

Austin, who helped draw up the legislative redistricting plan that helped Democrats gain control of both houses, reportedly had expected to get the post without opposition. But he withdrew his name from contention a short time before Lee's selection was announced.

Lee, former secretary-treasurer of the State Board of Accountancy, had actively sought endorsements. The endorsements included Wayne and Macomb County AFL-CIO Councils. He also had Teamster backing.

Personal preferences for Austin expressed by State AFL-CIO President August Scholle and Democratic State Chairman Zoltan Ferency, riled some Democratic legislative leaders.

The Legislative Auditor was created by the new state constitution to take over many of the audit functions of the formerly elected Auditor General.

Many Cars Still Lack 1965 Tags

LANSING (AP) — More than one million motorists still do not have their new 1965 license plates, warns Secretary of State James Harn.

Drivers have until Feb. 27 to purchase the new plates. There will be no sales on Feb. 28, a Sunday. After midnight Feb. 28, police will start picking up motorists with old plates.

Another Revolt Strikes Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Another coup hit Saigon today, but late this afternoon an attempt to nullify it appeared to be in the making.

Warplanes were circling the rebel-held Saigon radio station, and tanks were drawn up outside the station. Loudspeakers repeatedly warned the civilians to clear the area.

There was no shooting as yet, but the situation was extremely tense.

Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, leader of the rebels, said the coup's purpose was to end the dictatorship of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

Radio Contact With Ranger 8 Proves Faulty

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists guiding the Ranger 8 spacecraft to the moon face a critical decision — whether a final maneuver will be necessary to insure good pictures in the final plunge to the lunar surface Saturday morning.

Radio contact with the 800-pound spacecraft has been far from perfect since its launching from Cape Kennedy Wednesday. There was a time early Thursday when they did not know whether it had obeyed commands pointing it at the moon's Sea of Tranquility prior to the firing of a steering rocket.

Apparently it did obey properly. After long hours of tracking, scientists determined Thursday afternoon that Ranger 8 probably would impact within 18 miles of its target.

But there was a chance its six television cameras might not be pointed at the best angle to take some 4,000 pictures as it crashes into the lunar surface at 5,800 miles an hour.

Ranger 8 still has enough fuel to twist itself around in space if necessary so this is the dilemma faced by scientists today:

1. They first must determine whether the cameras are pointed at the best angle.

2. If not, they must decide whether to risk — in view of earlier communications difficulties — commanding the spacecraft to twist around to a different position.

On the basis of what they knew at the time, however, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Thursday that Ranger 8 should land at 4:57 a.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday and take better pictures than Ranger 7 last July 31.

A decision on whether to attempt the critical but possibly hazardous maneuver just before impact was expected to be made sometime this afternoon.

the strongman commander of the Vietnamese armed forces.

Thao claimed that Khanh was under house arrest and that Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, commander of the Air Force, was also under arrest.

Planes May Attack

Other conflicting reports said Khanh was at Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, directing a military operation, or that he was at Bang Tau.

Ky was reported safe at the Binh Hoa Air Base near Saigon and still in control of many of his fighter planes. It was thought he might attempt a counterattack.

Thao in a broadcast accused Khanh of swindling the military and the people. He said his action was directed against one man — Khanh — and no one else.

It was the eighth government upheaval in South Viet Nam since President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and slain Nov. 1, 1963. Khanh, commander of the armed forces, has been the country's strongman since Jan. 30, 1964.

There was great possibility of an attack by military units loyal to Khanh.

Khanh had been expecting trouble. Nearly the entire armed forces strategic reserve, normally held in Saigon to reinforce any field units in trouble, had been deployed to the provinces where forces loyal to Khanh presumably were still in charge.

These include two battalions of Marines in central Bin Dinh Province and the large force Khanh led to Nha Trang for an attack on a suspected Viet Cong supply port.

Thao claimed he had the support of the 25th, 9th, 7th and 5th Army Divisions, which are stationed in areas adjoining Saigon, plus part of the marine corps and part of the air force.

Thao and most of the coup leaders are Roman Catholics, and violent Buddhist reaction was predicted to their bid for power. Army elements still loyal to Khanh presumably would back such an upheaval.

During the afternoon, Thao made several speeches, apparently intended to quiet the populace and to drum up support. He said the Vietnamese ambassador to Washington, Tran Thien Khiem, was returning to Saigon to join him in leading the new government.

Surplus Of Men May Modify Draft Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara strongly hints he will recommend a change in draft policies when he reports to President Johnson on the problem in April.

McNamara, in a report to the House Armed Services Committee on the nation's military strength, indicated that some modification will be necessary in the Selective Service System because of a growing surplus in draft-age men.

And that, he observed, compounds the difficulty of deciding fairly which young men will be called up and when.

McNamara began reading his lengthy statement on the defense posture at a closed meeting of the committee Thursday. He returns today and is not expected to be able to finish his testimony before Tuesday.

"But it all depends on how many questions the committee members ask him," a committee source said.

In the censored and much shorter — it's still 207 pages — version made public Thursday, McNamara touched on practically every defense problem from jungle warfare and fallout shelters to manpower.

The defense secretary noted that President Johnson had ordered the manpower study last April.

"All reasonable alternatives to the present system, including the possibility of meeting our requirements on an entirely voluntary basis at some time in the next decade, are being explored," McNamara said.

McNamara didn't mention it but one problem has already arisen. Just the knowledge that a possible end of the draft is being considered, the Pentagon reports, has led to a drop in Army enlistments and a corresponding increase in the draft quota.

Romney Urges War On Bigotry

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Michigan Gov. George Romney urged Republicans Thursday night to wage a "war on bigotry" and, to help it along, appoint a Negro deputy to the national GOP chairman.

Speaking to "the Minnesota U-S-A Rally," Romney said, "we can ignore this duty and this opportunity only at our peril."

"For I am convinced," he said, "that a party which compromises on great issues, compromises with basic American principles, and ducks the challenges of history, will forfeit its right to leadership and jeopardize its own existence."

The Michigan governor suggested a five-point program for the "war on bigotry."

He urged Republicans to act as individuals against prejudice, to encourage voluntary remedial action, to marshal "the full resources of community and state governments," to support "all needed federal action against discrimination" and to work within the Republican party itself.

Auto Insurance Inquiry Sought

LANSING (AP) — Michigan legislators are calling for special committee investigations of auto insurance rate increases and cancellations.

Resolutions were introduced in both chambers Thursday asking for the probe.

The House resolution was a direct outgrowth of a two-day Detroit hearing on the problem earlier this week, backers said.

Final Decision Due In April; Pipe Ordered

Natural gas service to most of the Upper Peninsula this year was in prospect today after conclusion of hearings in Washington by the Federal Power Commission on applications of two pipe line companies to serve the area.

Hugh C. Daly, executive vice president of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., Detroit, said "The hearing is over, FPC Examiner Francis Hall has set up a schedule for quick briefing and I'd say that right now it looks good to get gas for all the U.P. this summer and we're betting a lot of money that this will happen."

"Examiner Hall has proved a great friend of the Upper Peninsula in the three weeks of hearings. He has talked of the necessity of expediting the processing of these applications to get gas to the U.P. this year and has said that he's going to get a decision in time to permit construction."

Two Permits Asked

The Federal Power Commission examiner heard requests of Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha to serve the Upper Peninsula east to Escanaba and Gladstone by a pipe line to be extended from the end of its present system at Duluth, and the request of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. to serve only the southern part of the Upper Peninsula between Escanaba-Gladstone and Iron River, by an extension of the pipe line of its sister company, Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Co., from Menominee.

Dealers in other fuels opposed the requests and some customers of Northern were in opposition, while the City of Escanaba appeared in support of Michigan Consolidated's application.

Examiner Hall proposed that Mich Con and Northern Natural divide the U.P. into service areas, since their proposals overlapped. This, he said, would result in more service than by either single proposal.

Northern agreed to do this on two conditions:

1. That Mich Con get a 10 year contract instead of a 5 year contract to supply gas to Hannah Mining Co., Groveland Mine plant at Randville.

2. That the division be agreeable to Michigan Gas & Electric Co., which is a party to Northern's project and which is to distribute the gas in most of the communities proposed to be served by Northern.

Gas In 1965

Hall indicated that if Northern maintained its competitive position there was small prospect of gas for the U.P. this year because of the lengthy processing of the competitive petitions that would be necessary.

Northern then agreed to amend its demands if it were permitted to argue in the brief that Michigan Consolidated should be required to get a 10 year contract with Hannah.

With that understanding the examiner agreed to an accelerated program of certification and ordered all parties supporting the issues to submit briefs by March 1 and opposition to submit briefs by March 15. Instead of the usually lengthy period for reply briefs, oral arguments are set for March 18 and Examiner Hall indicated that shortly afterwards he would issue his decision, which would be referred to the full Federal Power Commission.

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—One year in prison, three years on probation and restitution of $1,300 were ordered Thursday by U.S. District Court for Mrs. Doris L. Morticians Ask Public Status As Profession Efforts toward status as a profession and concern over growing criticism of the undertaking business occupied most of the attention of Upper Peninsula members of the National Funeral Directors Association meeting in Escanaba Thursday.

A business meeting was held in the afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce office and in the evening there was a dinner program at the House of Ludington, with Glenn Griffin, Pontiac, president of the National Funeral Directors Association, the speaker.

The speaker in the afternoon business meeting was Dr. Hideya Kumata, professor in the communications department of Michigan State University, East Lansing. He discussed the need for improved public relations.

Rochon President
The election of officers was one of the items of business in the afternoon.

Robert Rochon of Iron Mountain was elected president of the District association for the ensuing year. Rochon was vice president and has served the district as president in the past.

V. B. Freeman of Iron Mountain was elected vice president and Raymond J. La Fave, Stambaugh, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The Association recommended to Gov. Romney without preference five names for consideration of appointment to the State Board of Funeral Directors. They are Rochon, Frank Tondin of Iron Mountain; Jack McCracken of Marquette; Robert Diehm, Stephenson; and H. Wittum, L'Anse.

Status Image
Jack Jorgenson, Lansing, executive secretary of the State Association, explained to the group the progress that is being made in building a strong association. Recognition of the business as a profession is one of the major objectives.

"Funeral service is a professional calling and there must be public recognition that we do not shop around," he said.

Prof. Kumata further developed the theme of professionalism in his discussion of the need for improved communications with the public. He discounted criticism of the profession that have become national in scope and said the best method to combat them is "the face to face network" in the morticians own community.

No Advertising
Derogatory information about the profession is likely to reach relatively few persons unless it is on TV, he continued. He reported that the American public looks at TV 35 hours a week, listens to radio 13 hours, spends 20 minutes a day in reading newspapers, and reads less than one book a year.

"There would be real cause for alarm" if there is a critical look at the profession on TV or radio, he continued. "I'm sorry to say the American public is not a reading public," he said.

The funeral directors were lumped by Prof. Kumata with the doctors and lawyers as members of a professional group whose services are not to be made known to the public by advertising.

"Advertising destroys an image of professionalism," he said. "My opinion is that you can make yourself known through the mass media but advertising and professionalism do not go together."

"Face to face" contacts are the best public relations, he concluded.

Chips And Splinters

There's growing interest in plans for the hydroplane racing events on Little Bay de Noc next July, reports Walter Lewke, Chamber of Commerce manager. Witness the letter received by the Chamber:

"Our information is that an unlimited boat race is scheduled for Escanaba on July 11, 1965. Can you confirm this for us. We'd also like to know if additional events are scheduled for this weekend."

"Our dual interest in unlimited racing and vacationing in the Upper Peninsula would make this an ideal vacation week for us."

The letter was from Jerry J. Pok of West Bend, Wis.

The plans for the week do include a variety of attractions highlighted of course by the races, reports Lewke. Might be a good time to invite former Escanabans and friends here for a thrill-packed vacation.

Viet Nam Peace Deal Opposed By GOP Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican congressional leaders have stepped up their opposition to a negotiated settlement of the war with Viet Nam.

GOP Senate Leader Everett M. Dirksen charged in a floor speech Thursday that advocates of a settlement propose to "run up the white flag before the world and start running away from communism."

Earlier in the day, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford declared in a statement some Democrats want the United States to pull out of Viet Nam and "retreat to Pearl Harbor."

With Democrats divided on the issue, debate over Southeast Asian policy forced the Senate into another late session.

End To Bloodshed
Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield stepped into the debate to argue against equating negotiations with surrender and appeasement.

Mansfield said of Dirksen: It is "a profound reassurance to know that the great senator from Illinois can be counted on to put the best interests of the nation first in any critical situation."

During the maneuvers, which end Feb. 26, Specialist Sovey is receiving extensive training in weapons firing and small unit tactics.

Shoplifting Curb Is Sought Here

Forty-one members of the retail division of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce heard law enforcement officials discuss methods of curbing the high incidence of shoplifting and bad check passing in Escanaba stores at their regular monthly meeting held at the House of Ludington Thursday noon. Retail Chairman Jim LeGault presided.

Gordon Bean conducted the panel discussion by the law enforcement officials. Prosecuting Attorney Nicholas Chapekis, Probate Judge Marie D. Peters and Police Chief Harold Finman assured the retailers of their interest and support in combating the problems of shoplifting and bad check passing.

Bean said that a control system will be set up by the Retail Division to inform employers, personnel managers and managers of institutions of juvenile shoplifting offenders and of adult bad check passers.

Bean said that a record of such offenses could impair a person's ability to find employment. Juveniles should seriously consider the jeopardy of being involved in shoplifting, he added.

Charles Sedenquist, chairman of the Delta County Board of Supervisors, said that the Board was also interested in the problem of shoplifting and bad check passing on a county level, and assured retailers of the cooperation of county law enforcers.

Bean said that a meeting of the special committee will be held next week to get the program under way.

Chapekis Aids Code Revision

Delta County prosecutor Nicholas P. Chapekis, the only Upper Peninsula representative on a State Bar Association Committee to revise Michigan's criminal code, believes a new code will vastly improve the state's legal and judicial system.

"Our current code was passed in 1931," Chapekis said. "It's out of touch with modern legal concepts."

"A lot of the laws under the old code are never enforced," Chapekis said. "If you spit on a sidewalk in Michigan it's a criminal offense."

"Other things aren't adequately defined," he said.

"What's a sexual delinquent?" he asked.

Approval Needed
Chapekis said the Bar Association Committee, composed of 67 lawyers and judges and 15 advisors from law - related fields, will probably complete the revision late this year or early in 1966.

He said that if the legislature approves the new code it could become law on Jan. 1, 1967.

The revision committee was organized last November and met as a group for the first time in Lansing last month, though much preliminary work has been done through the mails.

Horace W. Gilmore of Detroit and Maxwell F. Badgley of Jackson are co-chairmen. Two members of the University of Michigan law school—B. J. George Jr. and Jerold Israel—have been appointed reporters for the committee.

Unify Procedure

According to Christian F. Matthews of Lansing, president of the State Bar of Michigan, the committee was formed for three purposes:

1. The complete revision of the criminal code to redefine crimes and penalties.
2. The complete revision of the law with reference to the handling of mental defectives and the sexually deranged.
3. The drafting of a set of rules of criminal procedure to unify the procedure in all criminal courts within the state.

Chapekis said that when the work is finished all courts and lawyers will have a clearer set of guidelines on how to treat certain criminal offenses.

California has recently completed revision of its code and New York and Illinois are in the revision process. Chapekis said Michigan would probably depend on California for assistance.

Painful Goals To Curb Drain Of U.S. Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration set voluntary but painful targets today for curbing the dollar drain caused by private overseas loans and investments.

In swift followups to President Johnson's personal appeal Thursday to some 350 businessmen and bankers assembled at the White House, the Commerce Department and Federal Reserve Board:

Called on every company that had $10 million or more of export sales or overseas investments last year — some 400 to 500 corporations — to reduce their net outflow of dollars to 20 per cent.

Asked each such company to notify the Commerce Department in advance of every new foreign investment project exceeding $10 million for an advisory ruling on whether the outlay is "in the national interest."

Imposed on the banking industry a voluntary ceiling for foreign lending. Outstanding credits to foreigners, said the Federal Reserve Board, should be held in 1965 to a level not more than 5 per cent above the total outstanding last Dec. 31. This apparently would reduce new loans to less than one-third the 1964 total.

Began drafting, at the Commerce Department, questionnaires and periodic reports for companies in the $10 million-plus class, to keep tabs on each firm's own "balance of payments" record.

Better In Long Run

Set about organizing, under direction of Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor, a "balance of payments advisory committee" of businessmen. Among other things, it will help draft guidelines to distinguish "desirable" from "undesirable" foreign investments.

"I know this will involve some pain, and it will mean passing up some profits," Johnson told the big businessmen who thronged the East Room to hear his appeal for "voluntary partnership."

But their country, their businesses and their stockholders "will all be better off for it" in the long run, Johnson promised.

And he backed up his plea with the mildest of reminders that if the $3-billion payments deficit is not sharply reduced by voluntary means, the government can enforce compliance by legislation.

"As President, I pledge whatever actions prove necessary to keep our economy strong and our dollar sound," he said.

FORD COMMENTS

DETROIT (AP) — Chairman

Henry Ford II said Thursday Ford Motor Co. plans to finance its current expansion in Europe and Canada "through funds generated outside the United States."

This disclosure was contained in a statement in which Ford said his company "will maintain a direct and continuing interest in measures to correct the nation's balance of payments situation."

Ford said he was giving "careful study" to President Johnson's recent call for government and private action to bring an end to the country's balance of payments deficit.

"I am sure," Ford added in his statement, "that most American businessmen do not welcome the prospect of artificial restraints on good and useful employment of American capital abroad."

"Ford Motor Co. for years has been a substantial contributor to the net inflow of funds to the United States. During the period 1950-1954 our company's international operations resulted in a gain of more than $3 billion in the United States balance of payments."

"In 1964 alone," Ford continued "our international operations resulted in a net inflow to the United States of $408 million in foreign exchange to the United States; for 1963 the figure was $319 million."

Evinrude Buys Elliott Lands For Development

Thomas Evinrude of Milwaukee is the successful bidder for the Elliott lands, 726 acres on the Garden Peninsula south of Fayette State Park. His bid of $31,500 was the highest of seven firm bids received by Arne J. Maki, Escanaba, executor of the Elliott estate.

"We are planning for the use of all of the land, a recreational development that we hope will bring more people into the area," Evinrude said in Escanaba today after he was informed that his was the high bid.

Evinrude, 32, is the son of Ralph Evinrude, founder of the famed outboard motor manufacturing firm. Ralph Evinrude and his wife, singer Frances Langford, have visited Fayette periodically in their yacht on summer cruises.

Sold On Bids
Tom Evinrude saw the land recently (but intensively) by automobile, snowshoes and skis on Wednesday and Thursday this week. He returned to Escanaba at 10:45 p. m. Thursday and submitted his successful bid before the midnight deadline.

The bids were opened at 9:45 a. m. in the First National Bank at Escanaba by James T. Jones, retired Gladstone banker, who was selected as a disinterested party.

Present for the bid opening were Maki as executor of the Elliott estate; James E. Frost, attorney for the estate; Arthur Neiman, representing some of the heirs; and Robert E. Lemire, representing Evinrude.

There were seven firm bids, ranging from the low of $8,025 to the high proposal from the Thomas Evinrude Land & Recreational Development Corp., Milwaukee.

For Recreation
"Our purpose is to develop the land and we expect to use every part of it," said Evinrude, obviously delighted at being the successful bidder.

"There's about two miles of shoreline, some on Lake Michigan and some on Green Bay. It will be a recreation development, with cottages, and it will bring more people into the area."

Evinrude said he had heard about the sale of the Elliott property through a friend, who directed his attention to a news story in the Escanaba Daily Press announcing the sale.

The friend, Barney Lusardi, formerly of Rock and now operator of a marine supply business in Milwaukee, saw the Daily Press story and suggested that Evinrude might be interested.

Old Homestead
"We were and we are very much interested," said Tom Evinrude, who was district sales manager for Evinrude in a region that includes the U. P., Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Today as the owner, Evinrude said he will be "most cooperative" with the State of Michigan in the preservation of buildings or other structures of historic value on the Elliott property.

The Elliott homestead is located at Sack Bay and settlement dates back a century or more. The old home is one of the attractions of the Peninsula. Many of the furnishings are now preserved in Fayette State Park museum.

Death Takes Mrs. Harris, 76

Mrs. Alberta Harris, 76, of 421 S. 13th St., widow of Michael H. Harris, died at 3:05 p. m. Thursday at St. Francis Hospital.

Mrs. Harris was born in Powers July 26, 1888, and her marriage took place Jan. 3, 1931, in Spalding. She and Mr. Harris moved to Escanaba in 1940 and he died Feb. 6, 1950.

Mrs. Harris, who was chief operator for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. at Powers many years, is a life member of the Michigan Bell Pioneers. She also is a member of St. Patrick's Church and Guild, the Third Order of St. Francis and the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters.

She is survived by two brothers, Edward J. and Joseph Montpas, Powers, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Friends may call at the Boyce Funeral Home after 2 p. m. today. The W. C. O. F. will recite the rosary there at 3 p. m. today. The Guild at 4 p. m. and the parish prayer vigil will be held at 8 p. m.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 11:30 a. m. at St. Patrick's Church. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

City Planning Talks Continue

The fourth and last interview of planning consultants by the City Council was held Thursday night when it met with Edward J. Hustoles, representative of Vilcan & Le-man Associates, Southfield, Mich.

Community-wide planning is the goal of the City Council in meeting suggestions for updating of the city's master plan, renewal of certain areas, and in particular the study of parking and traffic needs in the downtown section.

The Council will now, after hearing from the four consulting firms, evaluate their proposals and determine which may be retained as planning consultants.

Members of the Planning Commission were also present for the meeting with Hustoles and joined in the discussion.

In other business the Council accepted the low bid of the Northern Motor Co., subject to approval by City Manager Harvey and department heads, to supply the city with two one-half ton pick-up trucks. Northern Motor Co.'s bid of $2,498 was the lowest of four received.

The resignation of Herb McFarland as a member of the Committee on Aging was accepted by the Council with expressions of appreciation for his service in the past.

The next regular meeting of the Council will be held on March 3.

U.P. Air Service

The City of Escanaba called a meeting of the Upper Peninsula Air Service Committee to discuss with Michigan Aeronautics Department and North Central Airlines officials the future of scheduled air service in the Upper Peninsula. Specifically at issue was the suspended North Central service between the two peninsulas of Michigan via the "aerial bridge" between Escanaba and Traverse City on a flight route from Marquette to Detroit.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, after authorizing this service for a five year trial, chopped it off last year short of the period's completion when North Central reported that it wasn't meeting the "use it or lose it" minimums of passenger loading.

The process of getting federally authorized air service is difficult and poky. The state is warning the cities on the aerial bridge route that unless they impress the CAB before the end of this year that the aerial bridge is a needed and sensible service and one which can eventually pay its own way, that they are going to lose it permanently. Setting up a new case to convince CAB on the aerial bridge will be a costly, difficult process which will take years; it will be easier—though apparently difficult—to convince CAB by action in the current case, whose trial period terminates Dec. 31, 1965.

The same day that the U.P. Air Service Committee met the Associated Press reported from Washington that the CAB had struck Cadillac-Reed City, Pontiac and Port Huron from North Central's air service schedule downstate for "use it or lose it" failure and had denied the application of Gaylord to be added to North Central's flight south from Sault Ste. Marie.

These losses indicate the hard cash attitude of the CAB about federal subsidies for air service. It may be ever so good for the community served, but if the community doesn't use the service and make it self-supporting after a trial period the planes stop flying.

The U.P. Air Service Committee is apparently going to try to convince CAB that the aerial bridge should be reinstated. The committee, headed by Harold Vanlerberghe, traffic manager of the Escanaba Division of Mead Corp., will collect data on air traffic volume, needs and potential upon which to base a decision and a petition to the CAB.

The state attorney general and State Aero Department will help with the petition. Traverse City will support a U.P. request. North Central won't ask for reinstatement but won't oppose it. The airline thinks that CAB won't reinstate the bridge flight and doubts that Marquette and Escanaba have the traffic potential necessary to create a successful terminal area for such service.

The airline's position should not necessarily be the one of the communities that it serves. It has its own problems and they have theirs. Airline schedules are usually compromises between these two poles.

The aerial bridge makes good sense in saving of time, and even perhaps of money, and it serves to build up relationships and business opportunities between the two peninsulas of Michigan by improving their transportation ties with air travel. The weakness of the aerial bridge is economic at this time.

There are not enough people in the Upper Peninsula using commercial air service between the two peninsulas of Michigan, and not enough in the Lower Peninsula who want to come to the Upper Peninsula—at least not by airliner.

The traffic between the two peninsulas of Michigan is definitely growing, but air travel is not growing proportionately. Surface travel on superhighways has cut the car travel time drastically and it keeps going down. North Central cut its travel time by switching from DC-3s to Convairs but if it flew by the bridge route between Marquette and Detroit instead of by way of Green Bay it would save air travelers an hour each way.

The route is much shorter than via Green Bay but would be no cheaper, says North Central because it prices air fares on a point-to-point basis and the longer route fare via Green Bay would prevail for both routes. This makes no sense to us unless the miles are actually flown, but we are mindful that airlines are operated to make money and that it is much easier for North Central to make money hauling U.P. passengers downstate via Green Bay than direct because the Green Bay terminal is a funnel for southbound traffic to Michigan from Minnesota and Wisconsin as well as from Upper Michigan.

Littleness is our basic problem in the effort to increase air service in the U.P. The only real way to increase air service is to increase air traffic and it is not abundant here. North Central is giving good service to the U.P. in terms of the traffic generated in the peninsula.

The U.P. wants CAB to change the bridge route downstate so it goes to Traverse City, Lansing and Detroit. It now goes to Saginaw and Detroit from Traverse City. The U.P. has many governmental ties with Lansing, the state capital, but learns from North Central that it moves many more persons between Detroit and the U.P. than between Lansing and the U.P. The state employees seem more inclined to use a state car than a plane ticket.

Buying Oleo

USDA's announcement that it is buying oleo to give to needy families and charitable institutions because "government supplies of surplus butter are all committed" might lead some people to think there is a shortage of butter in this country.

It is certainly true that the government has been purchasing less butter under the price support program, but this doesn't mean there isn't plenty of butter around. The major reason for the low stocks of butter in government hands is that it has been doing a better job of disposing of the surplus through the Food for Peace and other giveaway programs. USDA could buy sufficient butter in the open market to fulfill domestic requirements, and thereby improve farmer prices without changing price support levels.

The government's decision to purchase oleo instead cannot help but hurt the dairy industry and further weaken butter's position in the marketplace.

Under the circumstances, it would not be difficult to agree with the opinion expressed in Dairy Record that "some officials in government are bent on making butter a word that is to be stricken from the consumers' vocabulary."—Michigan Milk Messenger

Ain't Seen Nothin'

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The war against crime in this country goes badly. In his promised message on the subject, President Johnson will be hard pressed to offer measures with some real thrust in them.

The prospect for the next decade is not cheerful, if trends of the past five years continue.

On that assumption, FBI projections indicate that serious crime in the United States will undergo an 80 per cent increase by 1975. In absolute numbers, such crimes may rise from a present 2.5 million a year to 4 million.

These figures suggest an 84 per cent increase by 1975 in such property crimes as burglary, major larceny, auto theft. The violent crimes of murder, rape, armed robbery and aggravated assault may climb 43 per cent.

The magnitude of this impending added peril to the national community is difficult to convey. It may help to note that the projected 10-year increase would be a little greater than the three-decade rise which has brought crime in the mid-1960s to such frightening levels. This rise outstrips population growth 5 to 1.

Today's crime is a tax upon the people amounting to an estimated $27 billion a year—roughly a quarter of the federal budget.

Americans are never ecstatic about paying taxes. But they have been singularly slow to bestir themselves over the crime tax. Enforcement authorities believe the explanation is partly the citizen's unawareness and partly his resistance or indifference toward adequate law enforcement.

Nevertheless, if crime as an economic issue does not register upon the citizenry as it should, it may be felt with increasingly quivering force as a "way of life" issue.

The individual who may be bored to read that some company loses 300 gallons of paint a month to dishonest workers is not indifferent when a burglar invades his bedroom or a "mugger" chokes him on the street.

In 1964, street thefts rose more than a third over the previous year, and residential burglaries climbed 20 per cent.

As this kind of crime goes on and up, it may be borne in upon the citizen that the losses are more than financial and the sufferings more than physical.

What is happening is a constriction of freedom.

It is obvious enough that organized crime, "Cosa Nostra" or whatever, constitutes a sort of illegal government enforcement.

ing its will. But the unfederated criminals, operating in a bewildering complex of individual patterns, also make up a dominating, if limited "government."

They tell people, through threat of attack, that they no longer can walk some of their beautiful parks at night or stroll certain neighborhoods. They "command" husbands to be at a particular corner at 9 p. m. sharp to pick up working wives, night after night, to avoid danger.

Those who flout this peril, who insist upon old-fashioned freedom of movement, often wake up in hospitals with broken heads to remind them who it is that truly governs many streets today.

The war with criminals is an unequal war. Only a relative few citizens try to reply in kind when an enemy using violence and stealth strikes as they walk or sleep or work in stores, banks, offices. Enforcement officials do not favor creating a second "armed camp" to fight the battle.

Short of arming himself, the defending citizen at least needs more numerous, more ingenious alerting devices. He has been a sitting duck too long. And the enforcement authority needs his support—too often feeble now—in halting the marauder before he strikes.

The Doctor Says:

Villain Behind Chapping

By Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt

The cracking and splitting of the skin, commonly called chapping, occurs mostly in cold weather. Contrary to popular notions, it is not caused by incomplete drying of your hands before you go outside.

It is due to excessive drying of the skin, which starts with the indoor air from which the moisture has been driven by your furnace. This drying is then aggravated by the cold wind.

The water content of your skin layers is normally 10 to 20 per cent. Chapping will occur any time this water content drops below 10 per cent. This is not due to a failure of your sweat glands, but to washing away and evaporation of your natural skin oil.

Any lotion that will hinder this evaporation of oil and moisture in your skin will prevent chapping.

Lotions that contain alcohol should be avoided, because they dissolve the oil in your skin.

If your hands are badly chapped, you should soak them in warm water for 10 or 15 minutes, then blot dry and apply a thin film of mineral oil, petroleum jelly or lanolin.

In a previous column I advocated increasing the humidity of the indoor air in winter. The prevention of chapping is an added reason for such a course of action.

Q—I am a man, 67. About 2 years ago my legs started to hurt from the back of my hips down to my calves. My doctor diagnosed my trouble as Lerich's syndrome and hardening of the arteries. What treatment do you advise?

A—Lerich's syndrome is an obliteration of the blood flow to both lower extremities. It is due to a large clot, and causes a severe aching pain

Elementary Art Teaching Called Too Copycatish

"I would prefer a live duck to a Picasso reproduction as a motivating influence for the third grade art class," says Robert Iglehart, chairman of the University of Michigan art department. "The importance of the art teacher's role at the elementary level is definitely in stimulating activity rather than in furthering 'appreciation' as such."

"Unhappily the typical elementary classroom teacher is uncertain and uncomfortable in her art program. Lacking sufficient experience with materials, she tends to limit the material available to the children, and lacking ingenuity in the suggestion of projects she relies on stereotypes, and the class room staggers from holiday to holiday: a round of witches, pumpkins, pine trees, rabbits and tulips."

The art teacher is likely to judge the children's work on their ability to paint within the lines, their copying skill, or following directions, he notes. "It may well be that the elementary teacher's preparation for other fields of the curriculum is also inadequate, but she would agree that it is in any case better than her preparation in art."

The government sponsored ore dock, No. 1, at Escanaba which is nearing completion, has been ordered sold to the highest bidder.

An Escanaba industry that operates in an unobtrusive way and yet is accomplishing much is the Groos & Co. on Washington Ave. Every so often it branches out with some new interesting specialty. At present it is manufacturing playground equipment and certain forms of hospital aids.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hancock of Manistique, in company with Mr. and Mrs. John Clendenon, old time friends at Mayville, Texas, were on a pleasure trip to various parts of California. On the return journey, Mr. Clendenon was stricken with a heart attack and died.

Ann Landers Buddy Has Low Opinion Of Sex

Dear Ann Landers: How can a person overcome stage fright? I guess that's what you call it although it has nothing to do with the stage. When I have to recite in class — or worse yet if I must give a prepared talk — I perspire and shake all over.

I am 16 and in high school. Ever since I can remember I've had this trouble.

Yesterday the teacher called on me to answer a question. My heart began to pound so loud I was sure everyone in the room could hear it. My mouth felt like it was stuffed with cotton and my lips moved but no voice came. After what seemed like an hour, the teacher called on someone else.

I hate to think of going through life scared to death to open my mouth. Will you please tell me how to overcome this horrible fear? —MOUSEY

Dear Mousey: First, know your material cold. If you are well prepared and confident, you won't be such a nervous wreck when the teacher calls on you.

Next, practice speaking aloud at home, before the mirror. Get accustomed to the sound of your voice. Memorize and recite both prose and poems, and ask a member of your family or a friend to listen to you.

Third, force yourself to get on your feet and speak out. In time the fear will vanish. I know it can be done because I have done it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going with a boy 19. We have both dated others but we prefer one another's company so we are now dating steadily, but not steady.

Buddy and I have grown up in the same block. Our parents are friends and we go to the same church. I thought I knew all about Buddy but I learned by accident that he had dated a very cheap girl. I decided to speak to him about it. He said he was ashamed of himself and finally stammered, "A fellow has to have two girls — one he can be proud of and wants to marry, and one for sexual reasons."

Maybe I am simple-minded, but I don't get it. I've discussed this with some of my friends and was surprised to learn that they think Buddy is right. Is he? —RESPECTABLE
Dear Respectable: Buddy has a low opinion of sex.

In our society, sex belongs in marriage. I hope Buddy gets his thinking squared away or he may turn out to be an alley-cat type husband — unable to find satisfaction with a respectable woman — his wife, that is.

Dear Ann Landers, I've been reading your column for years and have never seen my problem in print.

I'm scared to death to be alone at night and I'm no kid. Ann, I've been married 10 years and have two children. My husband must travel in his work and he is out of town about one-third of the time. I'm just fine when the children are at home, but when they are away at summer camp, or visiting relatives, even for one night, I'm a nervous wreck. I toss and turn and imagine I see faces at the windows. The wind sounds like a human voice wailing and every shadow looks like a ghost. When morning comes I'm exhausted and can't do my housework.

I've talked to my husband about this and he says I am a silly goose. I know he is right but it doesn't solve my problem. Can you help? —MRS. PETRIFIED

Dear Pet: Have chain locks put on your doors. And make sure your windows have secure locks. Keep the porch lights on all night, and keep a light on in the hall outside your bedroom door. If this doesn't solve your problem get a dog — and a big one — with a loud bark.

Lonely? * * * Uncomfortable? Just not able to make friends? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Debate Finals To Be Televised

Northern Michigan University will present a television "first" in the United States Saturday morning with its telecast of the final championship debates of the Upper Peninsula High School Debate League.

The debates will be telecast by the University's peninsula-wide educational television network, WNMR-TV, and will be distributed via cable systems around the U. P. It is carried by Delta Cable TV on Channel 4.

Saturday's debate will mark the conclusion of League activity for the current year for the 23 member schools in the Upper Peninsula. According to John W. Monsma, manager of the League and assistant professor of speech at Northern, the schools have been divided into two groups, one division of high schools with an enrollment of more than 400, and the second of high schools with less than 400.

All of the member schools will participate in three preliminary rounds on Friday.

Eight semi-finalists will be selected and semi-finals are scheduled for 8 a. m. Saturday. The telecast will begin at 9:30 a. m. with the small school championship debate, and conclude with the large school championship debate at 11 a. m.

All debates will be on the topic: "Resolved: that nuclear weapons should be controlled by an international organization".

Because the Upper Peninsula is Region I of the Michigan High School Forensic Association, the winning teams will be eligible to compete in the state tournament at the University of Michigan in April.

High schools participating in the tournament include Baraga, Bessemer, Bishop Baraga Central, Eben, Escanaba, Escanaba Holy Name, Ewen, Felch, Gladstone, Houghton, Iron Mountain, Ironwood, Ishpeming, Kingsford, L'Anse, Manistique, Marquette, Menominee, Munising, Negaunee, Negaunee St. Paul, Newberry, and Norway.

Winter Bells Ring On U.P.'s Cash Registers

Upper Peninsula long have known that winter can be fun in this North Country. And more and more residents of Lower Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and other state are finding out that they can join in the fun up here, too.

The result: A mushrooming ski resort business that has climbed from an estimated $750,000 ten years ago to the multi-million-dollar stage.

Resorts and other establishments which once catered to summer tourists only now are remaining open the year-round on the basis of business created through the influx of many thousands of skiers every winter.

Adding to visitors' and residents' enjoyment on the Peninsula's downhill slopes are winter carnivals like those staged recently at K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base and at Michigan Tech, Houghton. Snow-sculptured figures were created by the airmen at Sawyer and students at Tech to help provide a gala carnival atmosphere.

Ski jumping tournaments at Ishpeming and Iron Mountain, featuring top American skiers as well as foreign stars, provide a winter lure which the Upper Peninsula offers both residents and visitors. This year's tournaments are scheduled for Feb. 20-21 at Ishpeming's famed Suicide Hill and March 6-7 at Iron Mountain's Pine Mountain.

The Central United States Ski Association's Central Division ski championships will be staged at Cliffs Ridge, Marquette, Feb. 27-28.

In another year, the Upper Peninsula will have still another ski hill at Ironwood. Plans are for construction that will permit jumps of 400 feet.

"Noting the tremendous impact that winter carnivals, recreational skiing and ski jumping tournaments have on a community, we can't help but feel that there's a wonderful future in promotion of ice and snow attractions in the Peninsula," says Clyde W. Hecox, Marquette, president of the Upper Michigan Tourist Association.

"When we see the many diverse activities that can be incorporated into festivals such as Sawyer AFB and Michigan Tech conducted recently, we realize that Upper Michigan has a real opportunity of selling its winter climate as a source of fun and healthy winter sports activities.

"We purposely held our February executive committee meeting in Houghton to learn first hand the effect such an event has on a community, and we want to impress on all members of the tourist association and other residents of the U.P. that there's plenty of opportunity in the winter recreation picture."

Hecox noted that Upper Michigan, because of its climate and snowfall, actually has a longer skiing season than almost any other section of the country, that ski resort operators are able to practically guarantee good skiing from Dec. 1 through the end of March. This, coupled with modern highways that are kept clear of ice and snow than many other sections of the Midwest, makes it logical to assume that U.P. winter resort patronage will grow, he said.

Although some communities had downhill ski areas for the enjoyment of their own people before then, it wasn't until about 25 years ago that a commercial ski area was opened at Pine Mountain in the Iron Mountain-Kingsford area. It was rebuilt in 1945 by the present operators and expanded and modernized since then.

Pine Mountain Growth
This winter Pine Mountain, host to from 1,200 to 1,400 skiers nearly every weekend, expects it will have drawn more than 60,000 visitors from all parts of the United States before spring. Most of them come from the Fox River Valley of Wisconsin, Milwaukee and Chicago.

"An idea of just how much such a resort means to a community can be figured from Pine Mountain's payroll of between $60,000 and $70,000," Hecox said. "This resort area employs 35 persons — 35 of them full-time — for five months every winter."

"This skiing business is extremely important to motel and hotel operators as well as restaurant proprietors throughout the area."

"Pine Mountain's operators, who describe their business as 'way above a year ago,' are considering the necessity of expanding slopes, trails and tow and lift facilities to handle the increasing crowds. Naturally, this will mean still more patronage for housing and food establishments."

Demand for additional facilities also is anticipated at Indianhead Mountain resort, where, despite competition from the new Big Powderhorn Mountain resort, patronage was up 15 per cent in December and, apparently because of cold weather, about the same in January as a year ago, when it showed a big increase over 1963. Both of those skiing areas are in the Ironwood-Wakefield-Bessemer section of the Gogebic Range and are becoming increasingly popular with skiers from throughout the Midwest.

Situated near the Wisconsin border, Indianhead gets approximately 29 per cent of its patronage from the Badger State, another 28 per cent from Illinois and 27 per cent from Minnesota. Of the rest, about nine per cent comes from Up-

Wayne U. Refused Boost In Funds

DETROIT (AP) — A request by Wayne State University for $1,236,000 in additional funds has been rejected by Gov. George Romney.

The university asked for the money last month, saying it was needed to handle an unexpected enrollment increase. Romney said if the Wayne request was granted it would "morally obligate me to provide similar appropriations to the other universities experiencing enrollment increases over estimates."

In other action at its Thursday meeting, the Wayne Board of Governors accepted $981,871 in gifts and grants.

per and Lower Michigan.

Presumably, Big Powderhorn is drawing skiers from the same areas in about the same ratio.

Although complete figures are not available, skiing business is estimated to be worth upwards of $5 million to the Gogebic area every winter. Indianhead operators believe they'll host about 70,000 visitors alone before the snow's gone in early April.

How To Defeat Stuck Window

AP Newsfeatures

"Darling, would you mind opening this window? It seems to be stuck."

And darling huffs and puffs and can't blow the window down — or up, as the case may be.

The next time, darling, if the window resists your efforts, control yourself and get a putty knife. Nearly every case of a stuck window is caused by hardened paint in the channels in which the window sash is set. Break the seal and the window will open, but don't follow the common custom of using a crew driver blade or you'll leave a series of conspicuous marks. Use the putty knife or a similar tool made especially for this purpose and sold in many hardware stores.

In cutting the hardened paint by inserting the knife between the sash and the frame, work carefully and gradually. Keep trying the window every so often. Sometimes it will open a trifle, then get stuck again. Keep working with the knife. If necessary, hit the handle of the knife with a hammer or, preferably, a mallet — but gently, ever so gently. Try to hurry the job and you'll wind up with marred woodwork or a broken window pane. While you're working to get the window sash free, you'll probably make up your mind that if you ever paint a window again, you'll be mighty sure not to let paint harden around the edges of the sash. (You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

When all the paint appears to have been cut, but the sash won't move even an inch, it's probably stuck at the bottom or the top, depending on whether you're working on the bottom or top sash. Use the putty knife at these areas just as you did at the sides.

What if it still doesn't open? While this doesn't happen very often, it might. You won't like the solution. You're going to have to go outside and repeat everything you did on the inside.

Should the cause of the stuck window be swollen wood rather than hardened paint, your job will be a lot tougher. But that's another — and longer — story.

Gladstone Guard Unit Commended

How To Curb Wall Noises

AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: I live in one side of a twin house. I would like to put something on the dividing wall so that I don't hear the noises next door. What is your advice?

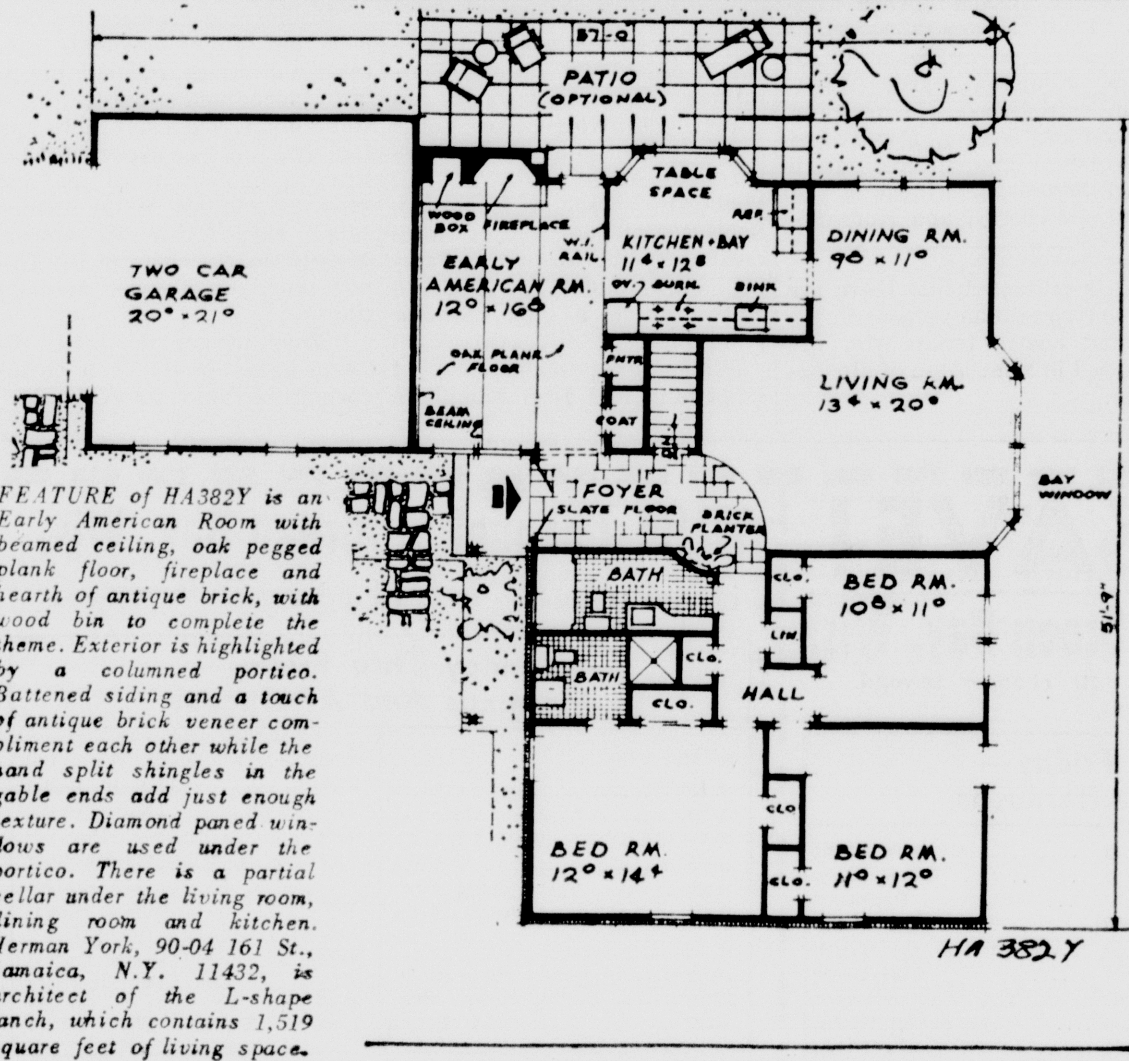

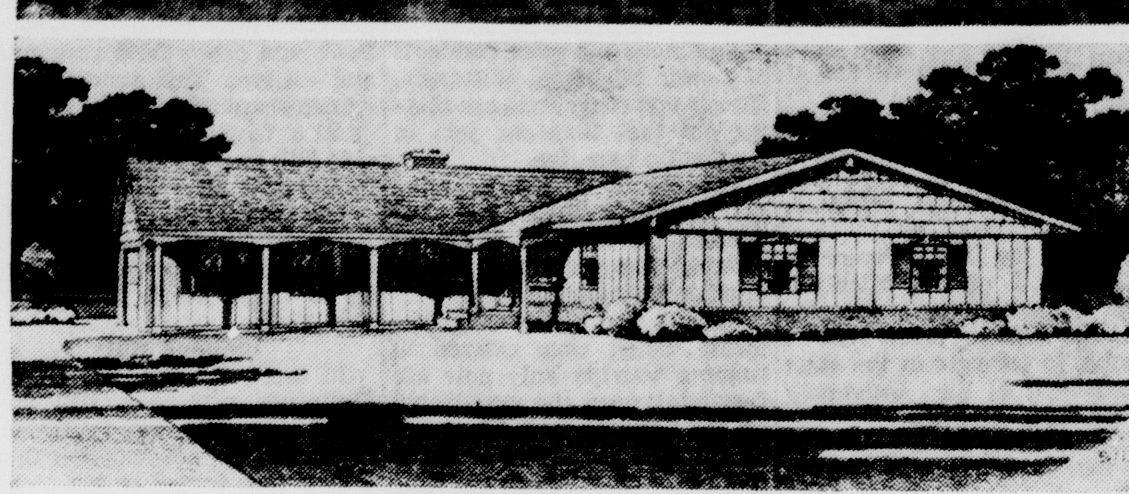

ANSWER: This is a tough one to answer, since a lot depends on what kind of noise it is and how loud it is. Generally, it is easier to keep noise within a room than to keep it out. Also, it is easier to keep sound from passing from room to room if adequate sound-deadening procedures are followed during construction rather than after it.

When the situation has reached the stage you mention, only the installation of a sound-absorbing material on the dividing wall will be of help. One thing that might work is to put up a full-wall drape along that particular wall. You could use the sliding type which could be opened and closed at will. Still another method, requiring more work, would be the placement of another wall over the present one. Insulation board would absorb most or all of the sound emanating from the other apartment. The use of a special adhesive rather than metal fasteners would help.

And if you wanted to do a complete job, but costing more money, you could put up staggered wall studs and then either conventional insulation board or what are called fiber glass "noise-stop" boards.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

FEATURE of HA382Y is an Early American Room with beamed ceiling, oak pegged plank floor, fireplace and hearth of antique brick, with wood bin to complete the theme. Exterior is highlighted by a columned portico. Battered siding and a touch of antique brick veneer complement each other while the hand split shingles in the gable ends add just enough texture. Diamond paneled windows are used under the portico. There is a partial cellar under the living room, dining room and kitchen. Stand On Floor To Paint Ceiling

AP Newsfeatures

If you've never done it, painting a ceiling while standing on the floor sounds a little ridiculous. But it is being done every day quite successfully.

I had heard about it for several years, but not until recently did I get a chance to try it out. Aside from the fact that my neck ached a little after I was through, everything worked out pretty much as everyone said it would. It took about one-fourth less time than ordinarily, due to the fact that climbing up and down a ladder was eliminated, except for the painting of the strips of ceiling next to the walls.

To paint the ceiling in this way, you need a roller, plus a long extension handle. It takes a few minutes to get used to wielding this contraption, but after a while you have no trouble. The trick, if there is one, is to paint an area of the ceiling slightly ahead of where you're standing rather than painting the section directly above you.

The principles of painting a ceiling with a roller are the same whether you are standing on the floor or on a ladder or work platform. (You can get Andy Lang's detailed booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.) You must put enough paint on the roller so that it will spread easily, but not so much that it will drip while you are painting. Roll firmly and smoothly, but pressing too hard also will cause dripping and spattering. Work across the width of the room, rolling from a dry area into a wet one, blending in the laps. Don't spin the roller at the end of a stroke.

You'll need a ladder and a brush to paint a narrow strip next to the walls. Paint this strip as you go along, although if you are using latex paint, the stripping can be done all at one time, since this type of paint is less likely to show lap marks. Edging rollers are available to handle this strip painting if you wish. Some persons swear by an edging roller, others prefer a brush.

Each dip of the roller into the paint tray should enable you to cover an area about two feet long and four feet wide, using back and forth strokes. If you do not already have a roller and go out to buy one before tackling the ceiling, this information may help you: rollers made of lamb's-wool are excellent for most oil paints, but not for enamels or latex paints. Synthetics are good for all types of paints. Mohair is especially good for enamels. Shortnaped rollers work better on smooth surfaces, long-napped on rough surfaces.

Comfort In Small House

PLEASANT EXTERIOR: Bow window, wide roof overhangs, triangular louvers, covered front entrance and nice combination of stone and wood shingles add luxury touches to this well-designed modest home.

PLEASURE AREA: The kitchen in the background is divided from this fireplaced family room by a snack bar. Sliding glass doors lead from the family room to a large terrace.

By ANDY LANG

Talk to any writer and he will tell you that it often is more difficult to produce a short rather than a long story. It is much the same in the field of architecture. Creating a good small house usually calls for more ingenuity than does a large one.

In designing the latest House of the Week, architect Herman H. York exercised plenty of ingenuity in turning out a one-story plan containing a basic 1267 square feet of habitable area yet supplying every requirement for comfortable living. York has included many features ordinarily seen only in larger, more expensive houses. The over-all dimensions are modest—46'8" in length, 33' in depth. If a little more space is available, plans are included for a one-car garage, laundry and extra lavatory, adding 12'4" to the length.

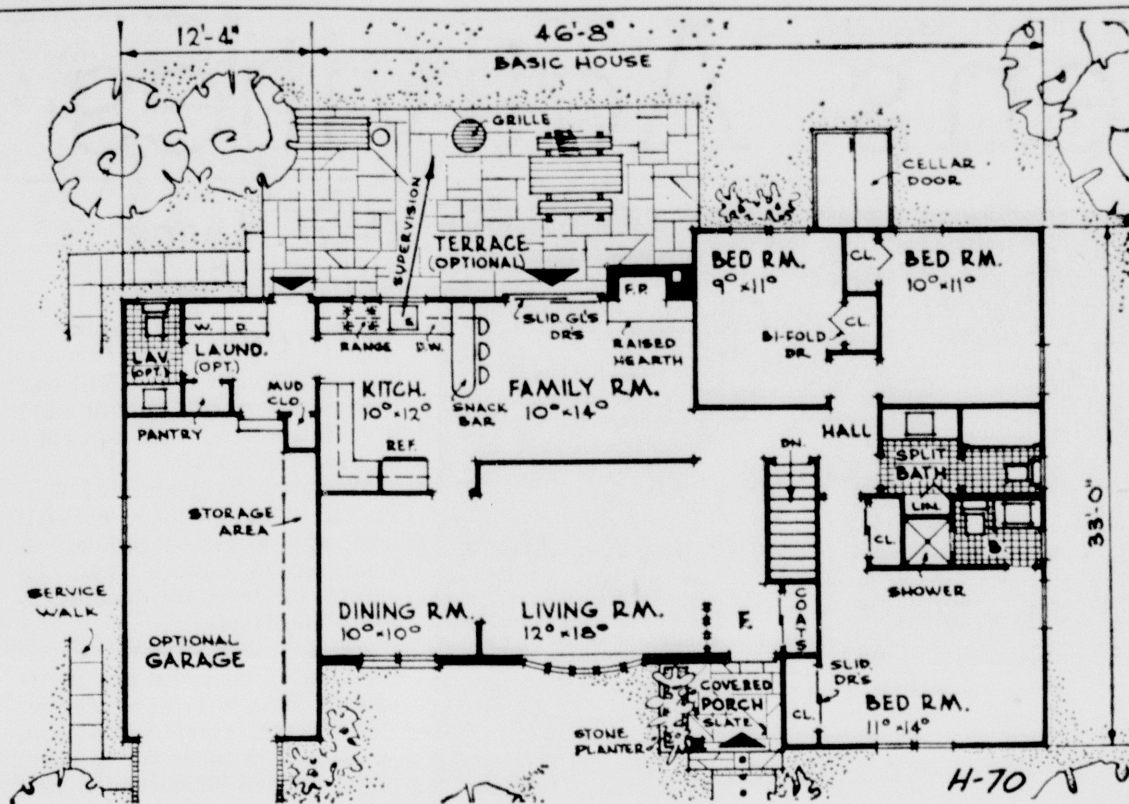

The center hall entrance is through a covered porch into a foyer which in turn leads to a living room with a bowed front window. Also in the front of the house, and directly in line with the living room, is the dining room, affording a sweep of 28'. While there is an entrance from the dining room to the kitchen, it is possible to go from the front entrance to the family room and kitchen without going through the living room. Adding to the good circulation pattern is the movement from the front door to the three-bedroom wing with-

GOOD IDEA

ATLANTA (AP) — There is little screaming by children brought by parents to the office of a suburban pediatrician these days but plenty of typing of sorts.

The doctor sawed the legs off an old table and put several battered old typewriters on it. Now the delighted youngsters bang on the keys while waiting to see him.

They cry when they leave.

FLOOR PLANS: A lot of thought obviously went into Design H-70, evidenced by the excellent traffic pattern, separating the living, service and sleeping areas and giving free movement without using the living and dining rooms as passageways.

out crossing any other rooms.

The kitchen window directly over the rear terrace and play area, a desirable feature when there are children in the family. A snack bar divides the kitchen from the family room, which has a fireplace with a raised and sliding glass doors to the terrace. It isn't difficult to see how this attractively designed combination—kitchen, family room and terrace—could become the focal point of the family's informal activities, leaving the living room and dining room free for formal entertaining.

When use is made of the area to the rear of the garage, the laundry and lavatory are accessible from a rear door as well as the kitchen. Under this arrangement, there is room for a pantry just off the kitchen and a storage area in the garage.

There are two bathrooms in the bedroom wing. The one in the main bedroom includes a stall shower. The other is a large bathroom with a split arrangement for dual use by children and guests. A private hall in this section of the house includes a stairway leading down to a full cellar. The plans also call for an outside entrance to the cellar from the rear garden.

Stone and wood shingles are pleasingly combined on the exterior. The wide roof overhangs add an appearance of luxury and contribute to lower maintenance costs because of the protection they give to the sidewalls. A bit of aesthetic value is added by the use of triangular rather than rectangular louvers at the gable ends.

Besides their eye appeal, they afford an extra measure of ventilation for the roof.

Architect York has achieved his aim of making a good small house.

Negro Singer Given Tribute

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Legislature gave singer Marian Anderson a birthday present Wednesday.

Miss Anderson, the first Negro singer to join the Metropolitan Opera, received a commendatory resolution in a joint session of both Michigan houses.

The joint resolution lauded the contralto, who is making her farewell tour of the United States, as a great artist, humanitarian and person, and as an exponent of "all that is best in her race."

Chief sponsors of the resolution were Rep. Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Senate Majority Floor Leader Basil Brown, both Detroit Negro Democrats.

Miss Anderson, who declined to disclose which birthday anniversary she was celebrating, told the legislators, "it is a very deep feeling that we have for this honor . . . we wish it were possible to let you know how deep that feeling is."

H-70 STATISTICS

Design H-70 has a living room, a dining room, a kitchen, a family room and three bedrooms with a habitable area of 1267 square feet—not including a covered front porch or a rear terrace. If a garage, laundry and lavatory (designed by architect Herman H. York as optional) are added, there are 345 extra square feet. This additional area would tack on 12' 4" to the basic house length of 46' 8". The depth is 33'. The plans include provision for a cellar, which can be reached from inside or outside the house.

Seattle Expells Players; One Says He's Innocent

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle University Chieftains, rocked back on their heels by a point-shaving scandal, regrouped Thursday to try to press on with their basketball campaign.

When they meet Nevada in Reno Saturday and Utah State in Logan, Utah, Monday, they'll be minus the help of their team captain, Charlie Williams, and two other teammates, Peller Phillips and L. J. Wheeler.

The three were expelled from Seattle University after the FBI arrested guards Williams and Phillips Wednesday night on charges of bribery and conspiracy to affect the outcome of the Chieftains' game against the University of Idaho Jan. 22.

Seattle won 89-72. The gambling point spread was 18.

At the same time, Williams and Phillips, both 21 and both seniors, were arrested, the FBI arrested Leo Casale, 24-year-old owner of a Chicago cocktail lounge, in that city.

The Rev. Timothy Cronin, chairman of the SU board of athletics, said Wheeler, 22-year-old Chieftain pivotman, was ousted along with Williams and Phillips because he knew of the incident and didn't report it.

Phillips and Williams, considered a candidate for All-America and described by SU Coach Bob Boyd as "the finest guard I ever had," were released under $1,000 recognizance bond each.

Casale, proclaiming his innocence to reporters after his arraignment was continued to Tuesday in Chicago, was released on a $25,000 recognizance bond.

Father Cronin said he and other officials of the university got the impression from talking to Phillips and Williams that they "were really victimized."

"Peller said that had it been a professional gambler, they wouldn't have talked to him," Father Cronin said. "But it was a fellow he knew. He thought he was kidding. He gave them apparently a big song and dance. They were just taken for a ride."

Father Cronin said Phillips told of meeting Casale in Chicago during a trip by the Seattle team in December, and the priest said the figure $130 was mentioned in his conversation with Phillips, but no money went to Williams or Wheeler.

Phillips, whose home is Detroit, was a student with Casale in Coalinga, Calif., Junior College.

Williams remained unavailable for comment, but Phillips said he intends to plead innocent at a preliminary hearing in Seattle March 1. In discussing the charge in the presence of his attorneys, Phillips declared, "I do feel I'm innocent."

His expression was glum as he was interviewed and said: "I feel very bad this came about like this, because a lot of people have been shocked. I'm hoping they won't judge me, or Charlie, until we're proven innocent . . ."

Charles Paces Tucson Tourney By One Stroke

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bob Charles took a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the $46,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament, but a host of other par-busters were in hot pursuit.

Charles, a 28-year-old left-hander from New Zealand, shot a seven-under-par 65 Thursday over the gigantic Tucson National Golf Club course. The par-72, desert layout stretches 7,200 yards and has some of the nation's biggest greens.

"They're the biggest I've seen outside of St. Andrew's in Scotland," said Charles, who almost passed up the tournament.

Charles entered the tourney five minutes before the deadline Sunday. "I felt I was getting a little jaded after playing six straight weeks," he said. "How-

Frank J. Rodman, tournament manager, said 50 entry blanks had been sent out and that about 34 teams were expected to enter. Forty-one teams participated in the seven-day grind last year with Niagara Lanes winning the Class A honors and the Norway Merchants the "B" title.

The Hermansville meet, one of the largest annual cage attractions in the Middle West, is considered the top independent tournament in the area and just about decides the Upper Peninsula Amateur championships.

"Most of the leading teams have been sent entry blanks," said Rodman, "but there may have been teams overlooked who wish to enter." They may obtain entry blanks by writing to the tournament headquarters in Hermansville. The entry is March 10th.

Some of the teams showing interest in this year's tournament include Eben, Crystal Falls, McNeil Oilers, Menasha, Soo (Canada), Stephenson, Menominee Ideal Dairy, Wausau, Oconto, Pembine, Trout Creek and teams from Escanaba, Marquette, Ishpeming, Negaunee, Green Bay and Iron Mountain.

Playday Set For Saturday

Royce Park will be the scene of the 17th annual grade school Playday Saturday afternoon beginning at 1:30. The event is sponsored each year by the City Recreation Department in cooperation with the Escanaba Area Public and Parochial Schools.

Boys and girls from the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades of each school compete against each other in skating races of 110, 220, and 440 yards. First, second, third, and fourth place ribbons will be awarded after the final race—and emblems earned by high point winners will be distributed to the individual schools at a later date.

Youngsters who plan to compete, as well as spectators, are asked to stay off the ice and to enjoy the races from the banks of snow around the rink.

Webster will be defending the championship it won last year with 73 points without high-point winner Jim Kornetved but Gary Provo will be back and he will be out to sweep honors in the boys' division.

The public is invited to attend.

Hull To Miss Toronto Game

CHICAGO (AP) — High-scoring Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks will miss the game at Toronto Saturday and is a doubtful starter against the Boston Bruins in Chicago Stadium Sunday, the National Hockey League team said today.

Hull, who lost the league scoring lead to teammate Stan Mikita in Wednesday's 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees, is hobbled with two injured knees.

In Wednesday's game, Hull was making a comeback after missing four games with a bad right knee. In the first period he pulled a ligament in his left knee.

Wants To Manage Howard Figures On New Career

NEW YORK (AP) — Elston Howard would like to become the first Negro manager in the big leagues, but first he thinks he has five more big years catching for the New York Yankees—hopefully at his present $70,000 salary.

All of which recalls to mind the day in 1954 when George Weiss, then general manager of the Yankees, called Bill Skiff, his chief scout, into his office.

"Bill, I want you to look at these four catchers," said Weiss. "I want you to recommend the one you think we should keep for ourselves."

The list that Weiss handed Skiff included Gus Triandos, Hal Smith, Lou Berberet and Howard. After a summer spent in the minors, checking managers, coaches, players and, most of all, using his own keen eyes, Skiff came up with his recommendation.

The No. 1 man on the list was Howard at Toronto, a young man who was converted from outfielder to catcher by the same Mr. Skiff.

The Yankees never have been sorry. In 10 years with the club he has built a lifetime batting average of .289. Ellie also won the Most Valuable Player Award in 1963 and the Babe Ruth Award as World Series hero in 1958.

He has played in 47 World Series games and six All-Star games.

Howard, who will be 35 next Tuesday, revealed his ambitions Thursday when he became the highest salaried catcher in baseball history at a reported $70,000. Yogi Berra's top pay was about $60,000.

"I figure on five more years as a player," he said. "When you lose a little of your reflexes and can't get around on the fast ball it is time to think of something else. But I haven't lost anything yet. If Johnny Keane wants me to catch every day I'll be in there. It makes no difference to me. I'll even go double in doubleheaders if he wants me."

"But when the time comes to step down I'd like to stay in the Yankee organization as a coach. I'd like to follow right behind Frank Crosetti."

"But if some day the manager's job were offered to me, I would accept and try my best to become successful as the first Negro manager."

Ellie, a right-handed batter, hit .313 last season, appearing in 150 games. He led major league catchers in fielding and hit 15 homers and drove in 84 runs.

Final Decision Due In April; Pipe Ordered

mission, which he said, could be expected to act promptly upon it.

"In prospect is a final decision by the full commission no later than mid-April," said Daly "and our goal is to start construction in May. In anticipation of this we have placed an order for $2.5 million of steel pipe that is now being made and which will be moved out of the steel yards before May 1 and any steel strike tie-up possibility.

"The right-of-way is being purchased — we bought more than 11 miles last week — but there is a problem here because there can be no condemnation of property for the pipe line before there is a final order of the FPC on the project.

"Last week we put out the pipe line construction contracts for bids, which are due back in three weeks. All the engineering drawings and specifications have been prepared."

As to the second condition imposed by Northern, Board Chairman Richard Rosenthal of Michigan Gas & Electric said he was agreeable to division of the U.P. for gas service on the terms originally proposed by Northern. His position on the amended terms affecting the Hannah Contract will be made known by MG&E to all interested parties, MG&E Counsel Reuben Goldberg told Examiner Hall, by letter.

Custody Fight Won By Brando

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — From the strife of one of Hollywood's stormier marriages to the tranquility of farm life in Illinois —

This is the change of worlds awaiting the six-year-old son of Marlon Brando and Anna Kashfi, following a court ruling Thursday at the end of one of filmdom's longest custody battles.

Miss Kashfi exploded at the decision which gave Brando temporary custody of Christian Devi on condition that he be raised by Brando's elder sister, Frances Loving, in Mundelein, Ill.

Miss Kashfi stormed out of the courtroom, banging doors, and outside the courthouse told a newsman: "This baby is my whole life, I bore him. Where in the hell was Marlon Brando when the child was being brought up?"

"And now a judge gives him to a woman I don't even know. Is this justice?"

The actress, her eyes dark, said: "I am not through fighting. I will subpoena the judge and whole — damn court."

Mrs. Loving testified at the five day trial. She's active in the PTA and her husband has been president of the local Board of Education. He's an instructor at the Chicago Art Institute.

Brando not only agreed to the move but actually suggested it to Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenbrand.

"I don't want my son to grow up in the unreal world that is Hollywood. I don't want him to have to live up to the sensationalized image of his father."

The trial was punctuated by spicy testimony. Charges of unnamed nude bed partners were hurled by both sides.

And Brando himself declared that he married Miss Kashfi in 1957 only "because she was with child and I wanted to give the boy a proper beginning in life."

The Delta County Building will be closed Monday in observance of Washington's birthday.

Iron Ore Handlers Lodge 400 will meet at 10 a. m. Monday at the Eagles Club. Dinner will be served at noon for members and their wives.

Club 314 will be closed to night and Saturday afternoon. Both local high schools are playing basketball games at home tonight and all supervisory personnel will be at Royce Park tomorrow afternoon conducting the annual Grade School Playday.

Mrs. William Neadeau and Ken LaVigne were high scorers with Gene Johnson and Winnie Sundling as runners-up in cribbage games.

Johnson Voted CD President

Mason Johnson, Delta County civil defense director, Thursday was elected president of the Upper Peninsula Association of Civil defense directors at a meeting at Northern Michigan University at Marquette.

Johnson, who has been Delta County's director since 1960, succeeds Robert Marshall, Chippewa County civil defense director from Sault Ste. Marie, to the post.

Other officers elected were Toivo Kangas of Houghton, vice president, and Dave Olive of Menominee, secretary-treasurer.

The meeting of the U. P. Association was designed to inform Upper Peninsula civil defense directors of changes in federal and state programs and the program included Capt. Richard Nicolen, state deputy director of civil defense, and his staff from Lansing.

"The federal government is continually opening doors for more materials and closing others," said Johnson.

"For example, now we can purchase adding machines, typewriters and office equipment to be used by the county in civil defense work," he said. "We are no longer eligible to receive matching funds for purchase of police equipments."

"Generally speaking, though, we are getting more and more assistance from the federal government every day."

Under the civil defense program, Delta County is eligible to receive 50 cents on each $1 it spends for civil defense work from the government.

Johnson said about 35 civil defense officers and representatives from the Upper Peninsula attended the meeting. He said his responsibilities as president would primarily be to coordinate activities and programs between U. P. civil defense organizations.

Valentine Social Held At Perkins

PERKINS — The valentine party held Sunday evening in St. Joseph Church Hall was a great success. Four Victory Knoll Sisters from Marygrove Retreat House, Garden, presented interesting slides and Wayne St. Pierre of Escanaba spoke to the young people on marriage.

Virgil LaJoyce of Sault Ste. Marie was in charge of the social part of the evening. Mr. LaJoyce, widely known for his skill in calling square dances, brought with him his wife and several couples from the American and the Canadian Soo. They demonstrated the many square dance sets and taught the young people some of the basic steps. Lunch was served after the program.

Chips And Splinters

Thomas Cleary, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cleary of Escanaba and deputy state treasurer of Michigan, is resigning his state office to become a lobbyist. His resignation and the appointment of his successor, an Upper Peninsula, are to be announced soon by State Treasurer Sanford A. Brown, who is expected to remain as state treasurer through this year, or most of it.

The state treasurer's office has been abolished as an elective office by the new Michigan constitution, but the Legislature hasn't implemented the transition yet.

Cleary, the father of five children, is a native of Escanaba and cut his political teeth here under the tutelage of his politically able father, a long time Delta County Democratic chairman and U.P. party leader.

The time is regarded as particularly ripe for Democratic lobbyists in Lansing as most of the practitioners there are veterans of the Republican period of legislature control.

U.N. Recessed Until Sept. 1

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly ended one of the stormiest sessions in U.N. history Thursday night and recessed until Sept. 1 after the United States checkmated an Albanian move to force an East-West showdown.

Applause rang out as Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson announced that the United States would agree to a procedural ballot demanded by Albania and would not challenge the Soviet Union's right to vote.

Red China's U.N. spokesman, Halim Budo of Albania, boasted that he had strong support. But a 97-2 vote swamped his demand that the assembly organize for normal business.

The assembly approved by acclamation an interim budget and the appointment of a multinational committee to study the problem of U.N. peace-keeping.

Mead Papers Up Prices On Coated

DAYTON, O.—Mead Papers Division of Mead Corp. announces to its distributors an increase of $15 per ton in prices on most of its coated printing paper grades.

H. Warren Kampf, president of Mead Papers, stated, "We have experienced a steady increase in the prices of raw materials, equipment, labor, and services, including freight and communications. We must generate sufficient profit to insure continuous modernization and quality improvement programs demanded by our valued customers. Continued efforts to reduce costs of manufacture as well as price increases are necessary at this time."

Romney To Sign First 3 Bills

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney was to sign the first three bills of the 1965 legislative session into law today.

The bills, all House measures, grant the balance of their 1964 salaries (about $200) to the widows of the late Reps. Walter Hyso, D-Hamtramck, and Paul Chandler, R-Livonia.

They both died after the Nov. 3 election. Chandler had been just elected to his first term in the Senate.

The third bill extends indefinitely a weight tax reduction for city and suburban buses from an average of $300 each to a flat rate of $25.

Home Rule Gets C. Of C. Backing

Directors of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce went on record Thursday favoring permission legislation for all counties to adopt home rule, regardless of the population of the county. The State Affairs Committee of the Chamber, John R. Stoll, chairman, recommended the action.

Four new members were accepted into the Chamber: the City Drug Store; Dr. Roger Beauchamp, Delta Animal Hospital, and Norge Cleaning Village.

Fifty thousand copies of the Escanaba travel folder and 50,000 copies of the Delta County folder are again being distributed at Midwest travel shows, said Chamber manager Walter Lewke.

A sub-committee of the Civic Affairs Committee, with Gabriel Meretsky as chairman, has been conducting a study of city ordinances at the request of the City of Escanaba. It will coordinate its efforts with a committee from the city to update existing ordinances on going out of business sales, peddlers and transient merchants, ordinances licensing photographers, etc.

Lewke said that the Chamber had wired Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, its opposition to Section 205 of Medicare Bill, HR 1, which pertains to a tax on tips. "In the Chamber's opinion, this section is impractical and unworkable," the Chamber stated.

Lewke reported that the Chamber requested the Michigan State Highway Department to place "business district" signs to aid in directing travelers to Escanaba's business district. The Chamber has been assured by Larry V. Suboski, district traffic engineer, that "business district to the left" and "business district to the right" signs will be placed near the junctions of US-2 and 41 and Ludington Street. A "business district ahead" sign is already at the west entrance of the city on US-2 and 41. The Highway Department will assist with the placing of a sign at Sylvan Point directing tourists to the Lake Shore Drive Lake Front when paving of this area is completed, said Lewke.

Red Buses Too Small; Havana Uses GM Type

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Buses made in Communist countries have not worked out in Havana, but reconstructed General Motors buses are doing fine, a top Cuban transport ministry official said.

The capacity of buses made in Communist lands is too small for Havana, Jose Morales, deputy minister of transportation, said in a radio interview monitored in Miami Thursday night.

They are better suited for smaller towns in the provinces, Morales said. "A route serviced entirely by reconstructed General Motors buses has been initiated recently," Morales said. "In just three months, Cuban mechanics in Havana have rebuilt 26 buses."
